

An aerial photograph of a residential development. The development is enclosed in a yellow rectangular border. At the top of the development, there is a large, irregularly shaped pool of water. Below the pool, the houses are arranged in several rows, separated by winding streets. In the middle-left section of the development, there is a playground area. The houses have dark roofs and are surrounded by some greenery and dirt areas. The overall layout is a typical suburban residential design.

Pool

Playground

W. 121st St. S.